The pageant to be given will visualize the history of Oklahoma from prehistoric times, through the exploration by the French and Spanish, the coming of the five civilized tribes, the opening of the Cherokee strip, the coming of the oil men and the history of Nowata. There will be folk dances, but no musical numbers, and no Indian dances. One of the scenes will be a regular rodeo with roping and riding by expert cowboys. Another will be a tribal dance by the Kiowa Indians. This is the first big pageant ever attempted in this city and the plans are arousing great interest. A great tract of ground has been secured near the city, where the pageant will be staged.
